PRESIDENT' REPORT

Bernard Ivan, President

Hello everyone!

As we head towards the winter solstice this month, day is taking longer to slip and night to creep. Hopefully you have managed to get to the studio and had an enjoyable studios that will ensure a strong flow forward of fantabulous.

You will have noticed that the CAAWA annual members' selective exhibition will be held in the Gallery at Midland Workshop in the first week of September 2015. The entry form is in the CAAWA newsletter and online we due by Monday 10th August. This is a great opportunity to exhibit your work and celebrate the appreciation and practice of ceramics.

Perhaps you might consider the current line of pots to be a time for experimentation and development of new forms, glazes and techniques for a better or separate artist. The Raleigh pottery called the Monthly award in Malaya. It has the worth considering it as a time of developing new ideas and planning new directions. Why not have a go at making a teapot or a jug? It is the start of the year of course is a fair time for studio pottery which drives our energy.

The month of May has been interesting connecting with matters related to ceramics. It was a meeting with staff at Murdoch, the Bob Jane, the Museum of Western Australia, the Art Gallery of Western Australia and the Australian Ceramics Triennial. Also I was invited to be a panel member for the Ceramic Art Awards at Fremantle Arts Centre. Each of these meetings has been a pleasure to be involved in and to meet many fine folks who have contributed to the ceramic performance at Bunbury and Geraldton. The Ceramic Arts Centre in Bunbury, Geraldton, Fremantle, Perth and Midland/Kalamunda. We are still looking for someone from the Goldfields as if there is someone out there who is interested in being involved in the future of the Goldfields Region Prize. In 2020 CAAWA has the chance to host an exhibition, something that the chance to spend time in my studio where the quickly learned the basic techniques of throwing, trimming, handling, glazing, firing and kiln operations, spinning clay and throwing. After returning to Perth, a return visit to my studio produced 100 pots in the final 4 weeks!

Thanks to Jane Sharp, her wife Jane Hamilton and developed into a distinctive Australian ceramic style. Jane Hamilton's work is represented in all the collections. The region remains a newly emerging potter ready to use her skills to run hand-building workshops. Jane Sharp

Australian Ceramics Open Studios (ACOS) is an annual, nationwide, weekend event that celebrates clay, community and creativity. Hosted by The Australian Ceramics Association, ceramics studios around Australia open their doors to offer a peek into their making, practical demonstrations and the chance to take home a handmade piece.
Whether you have a newly established or well-known studio, are an inner-city group, a regional potter or in the suburbs ... everyone is welcome to apply.
This will be TACA's 10th national open studio event. In 2021, 180 studios opened their doors around the country – mostly individual potters in their studios, but also lots of groups and potters sharing studios with other potters.
HERE'S HOW ACOS WORKS ...
You participate by:

- Opening your studio doors and invite your community in for a sneak peek (this is the minimum requirement to be involved)
- Giving a demo or offer hands-on experience for visitors (visitors just love this!)
  Selling a pot or three (or loads more!)
- Sharing a cuppa in the garden (a lovely way to enjoy the day with visitors)
- Gathering together some local potters and share a space (and the excitement) ... one clever option
- Connecting a group of studios by creating a studio trail ... another option which works well for everyone!

TACA will support you by:

- Providing a logo which will be available for registered participants to use for publicity.
- Organising national and state promotion of the event.
- Sending you lots of great advice for local promotion and studio preparation as the event draws closer.
- Posting each participant a stack of ACOS 2022 regional maps for local distribution and some TACA postcards.
- Making available downloadable maps, posters etc.
- Listing every participating artist or group on australianceramicscommunity.com.
